COL. MCCARTY TO GO TO NEW YORK

Controlling Interest Purchased. Future Contractor in the City. Building Factory Assured. Silk Factory Spoken of.

TIMES BUREAU, HOPKINS, LUCKING, & SALEM, VA., April 18, 1890.
The Ladies' Matinee Musical, an organization composed of local talent, will give a "gypsy" concert in the Opera house on Tuesday, the 29th inst. Fine scenery, rich costumes, furnished by a Washington costume designer especially for the occasion, illuminated tableaux and the pretty faces of the Salen belles, will all contribute to make the entertainment an enjoyable one. A rare treat may be expected and the public should turn out and give the musicale a full house.

WEST END ADDITION.

Desirability of Land Demands for Lots There.

All who come to this city, either as visitors or as residents, are pleased with its location as well as with the energy and enterprise of its people.

As soon as they have ascended one of the gently rising elevations of the city and viewed the handsome public and private buildings, many of them fresh from the builders hands, and all of them comparatively new, they are filled with admiration for the city and its progressive people, and begin at once, if they are able, to make investments with the ultimate intention of building themselves homes.

In whatever direction they look they see eligible building lots and houses in cultural sections of construction. In the Western part of the city the view however is one of the most enchanting and that location for residences is most numerous and desirable. The land from Grove street westward, with occasional interruptions, is a beautiful tract, with a few hundred yards of Roanoke river where it slopes westward to the beautiful valley border, the banks of that winding stream.

Just where the West End Addition meets the city, a handsome boulevard of a mile in length begins and from this to the north, and south runs numerous streets, intersecting other leading east and west. These streets divide what was once the property of the West End Land Company into blocks which in turn have been laid off into lots, the most desirable to be found anywhere for the purposes of residences.

The demand for these lots was such that the company soon disposed of all of them, and they are now owned mostly by single individuals. Messrs. James S. Shannons & Co. are agents for a large number of these owners, and their numerous daily sales of lots fully attest the great demand for them.

The Roanoke Street railway company has lately completed a line through the center of this property and cars run hourly from the Union depot by this route to the western limits of the city. Here, removed from the bustle and turmoil of the business center, the hard worked man can find the rest and quiet of a suburban home without any of its attendant disadvantages. The pure air from the surrounding mountains will soothe the blood which courses through his veins, and the panoramic view of all that is grand and beautiful in nature or tasteful in art will soothe his mind when wearied with the cares of constant daily toil.

The elevation is such that every lot is thoroughly drained without being abruptly steep or precipitous. Water, electric and gas, and the telephone and the letter-carrier system will be as completely within his reach as if he resided in the center of the city, and a few yards from his door, ready for his call will be street cars to carry him to his place of business during working days or to church upon the Sabbath.

All things considered, the West End property offers advantages to purchasers which cannot be surpassed, and that these advantages are appreciated, the handsome homes already erected there, those in process of construction, or contemplated, abundantly prove.

A talk with the leading contractors of the city will satisfy the most skeptical as to the splendid building prospects of the addition, and the records of the clerk of the corporation court will show that many fine building sites there are owned by men of means and culture, who have purchased solely to build themselves homes of taste and comfort at an early date.
